GENOCIDE SURVIVORS

Escape to Hotel Rwanda

LAWYER Fatina Mukarubibi, 35, is deputy director-general of Rwanda's Workforce Development Authority.

- 1994: Then a student in the capital Kigali, she survived a shooting at a road block. She was beaten at a second road block till she lost consciousness. Finally, she escaped to Mille Collines Hotel where the Hutu manager bribed the Hutu Interahamwe militia not to kill 1,000 Tutsi refugees hiding there - a story that inspired the Hotel Rwanda movie.
- 2009: Now a high-ranking official who develops Rwandan job skills. The loving mum has three children. Her daughter cannot tell which classmates are Hutu or Tutsi.

'The future generations will leave behind this story, I'm sure,' she says.
